Basic Airborne Course

Static Line Parachuting Course (Basic)

Our Basic Static Line Parachuting (Basic Airborne) Course is designed for those of our members who haven't yet joined a military airborne course at a military airborne school, to give them the opportunity to qualify as military parachutists, but is also opened to former military parachutists that need a refresh. This course is held by our Airborne Training Center and is being taught by our highly qualified military airborne instructors coming from the NATO countries' Armed Forces. During this full-immersion theoretical and practical Airborne Course you will receive an intensive classroom instruction and practical ground training in the principles of military parachuting. You will learn the basic static line techniques and training (exit-position, behaviour below the parachute, malfunctions, safety procedures, emergency landings, PLF, etc.) in reference to the military standards. You will learn not only the tactical capabilities of your parachute but more importantly – you will learn the tactical capabilities of yourself! After you have successfully completed this course and have done the jumps you will be qualify as parachutists. This means, that you can take part to the training exercises and to the jump operations reserved to our members. During this exercises and operations you can do tactical jump (equipment, night and wather) with round-canopy systems with automatic opening as well have the opportunities to participate in airborne operation with airborne units and be awarded their official parachute wings!

Be prepared, upon successful completion of the training and jumps you will be awarded the European and Czech Army Parachutist Badges & Certificates!

The EPA's Airborne Training Center can conduct a Basic Static Line Parachuting (Basic Airborne) Course at your location using our Mobile Training Team - MTT. Using your or our equipments we can tailor and customize the course to your tactical requirements.
